The normal tenure track probationary period at the School of Arts & Sciences is seven academic years. During the sixth year of probationary service (if not before), Arts & Sciences will decide whether to recommend to the University’s Board of Trustees that the faculty member be awarded tenure. The University’s tenure decision must be communicated in writing to the faculty member by the end of the sixth year of probationary service (i.e., at least one year before the conclusion of the seven-year probationary period).

[Note: The formal granting of tenure is contingent upon permanent residency or citizenship status; the Board of Trustees may approve a case for tenure, but the effective date does not officially occur until residency status is met.]

Unless otherwise mutually agreed in writing, certain prior academic service must be counted toward the faculty member’s probationary period at Washington University. Section IV.B.2 of the Washington University Policy on Academic Freedom, Responsibility and Tenure states: “Prior tenure-track (or equivalent) academic service at another institution of higher education ordinarily will be credited toward the probationary period at Washington University. It may be mutually agreed in writing between the incoming faculty member and the University, however, that some or all of the prior academic service not be counted toward the probationary period at Washington University, even though the total probationary period in the academic profession is thereby extended beyond the normal probationary period of the University’s school or college.”

This form must be completed to determine what, if any, prior academic service will be counted toward a faculty member’s Washington University tenure probationary period. Please forward the signed original to the Dean of the Faculty of Arts & Sciences.

1 Under A&S policy, in certain circumstances the normal probationary period may be extended by one additional year with the approval of the department chair and Dean of Faculty. The dates in this Tenure Status Form are based on the normal seven-year probationary period. If an extension is granted, a separate probationary period extension form should be completed to amend this form.

2 If the appointment commences after July 1, the period between that date and the following June 30 will be deemed to be one full academic year for purposes of calculating the probationary period and related dates.
5. List below all prior tenure-track or equivalent academic service at another institution of higher education:

3 Prior service will not be considered “tenure track or equivalent” if, for example: it was not on the institution’s tenure track; it was a part-time, adjunct, or courtesy position; it was a position for which significant time was not allotted for scholarship; it was a position in a different field; it was concluded many years ago; or it was at an institution not accredited by a recognized United States accrediting agency or an official candidate for such accreditation.
